Características

La tecnología PVD

Physical Vapour Deposition, es la técnica de deposición en los recubrimientos, se caracteriza por no producir ningún tipo de contaminación del medio ambiente, y por la posibilidad de combinar diferentes compuestos químicos adquiere distintas propiedades técnicas como son: color, dureza y resistencia a la abrasión.

Ventajas de PVD

- Extrema dureza superficial. La dureza de la capa se encuentra aprox. en 2.400 HV.; mediante este sistema de capa se consiguen espesores de 40-150 µm.
- Máxima resistencia a la abrasión y rallado (doble o mas que los esmaltes de metales preciosos).
- Máxima resistencia a la corrosión (más de 1500 horas de exposición a la niebla salina sin alteración superficial) (ISO 9227).
- Inalterable a rayos UV: 2400 horas (UNI 9397).
- La resistencia a ciclos de hielo/deshielo.
- Los revestimientos con aplicación del titanio proporcionan la actividad antimicrobiana sobre la superficie de baldosa.

Features

PVD technology

Physical Vapour Deposition is the coating deposition technique that is characterized by the fact that it does not produce any type of environmental contamination, and due to the possibility of combining different chemical compounds, it acquires different technical properties such as colour, hardness and resistance to abrasion.

PVD advantages

- Extreme surface hardness. The hardness of the coating is approx. 2,400 HV; thicknesses of 40-150 µm can be achieved with this coating system.
- Maximum resistance to abrasion and scratching (double or more than precious metal enamels).
- Maximum corrosion resistance (more than 1500 hours of exposure to salt spray without surface alteration) (ISO 9227).
- UV resistant: 2400 hours (UNI 9397).
- Resistance to freeze/thaw cycles.
- Titanium-applied coatings provide antimicrobial activity on the tile surface.
